Filipino festival turns into a PARTY AT THE MALL

Thousands of people turned out for the first Manitoba Filipino Street Festival held at Garden City Shopping Centre on Saturday. Sex assault. Ex-cop deserves 5 years: Crown

A Manitoba prosecutor says a former police officer convicted of sexually assaulting women and girls should get five years in jail.

Marty Minuk told the sentencing hearing for Richard Dow, 58, on Friday that the former Winnipeg officer had a position of trust, and that he violated that position.

Dow pleaded guilty in May to 11 counts of sexual assault and one charge of simple assault involving a modelling business he ran while he was a police officer. The victims ranged in age from 17 to 23 and most were assaulted at photo shoots at Dow's home.

Dow's lawyers have asked for a conditional sentence, but some of Dow's victims have said that would be a slap in the face to them.

The judge has reserved his decision until Sept. 13.

Dow wept in court as he apologized to his victims. "I do offer my sincere apologies," he read. "It was never my intention to harm anyone, however, I do take full responsibility for what has taken place."

Dow had originally pleaded not guilty to sexually assaulting 20 females but many of those charges were stayed after he changed his plea.

The case drew the attention earlier this year from Greg Gilhooly, one of the junior hockey players who accused former coach Graham James of sexual assault.

Gilhooly said even though some of the women's claims won't be heard, they should still feel they had an impact on Dow pleading guilty.

Dow's lawyers argued their client is unlikely to reoffend, and said negative media coverage has humiliated him.

In addition to a conditional sentence of two years less a day, they requested Dow serve his time in the community under a curfew, as well as perform 240 hours of community service. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Event. Cyclists and their bikes to light up Broadway

Cycling enthusiasts and flashy lit bikes will be appearing in neighbourhood destinations for three nights — Aug. 28 to 30 — in anticipation of this year's ManyFest event, Lights on Broadway.

The cyclists can be spotted between 8:40 p.m. and 10 p.m. at Omand Park, Memorial Park, St. John's Park, Lagimodiere Gaboury Park, Lyndale Drive Park, and Riverview Community Centre.

The Lights on Broadway Parade of Lights begins at Memorial Park at 8:40 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 8, where participants will pick up a candle, make their bike glow at one of the lighting stations, and walk down Broadway in a living parade of lights.

"People will get a chance to celebrate Broadway in a unique and innovative way — by lighting up the medians with various applications of light — in our inaugural living Parade of Lights," said Stefano Grande, executive director of the Downtown BLZ, in a press release.

Prizes for the best lit-up bike or individual will be awarded. METRO

Notice. City closes civic parkade, relocates drivers

The City of Winnipeg has closed the civic parkade effective immediately.

After an engineering report, the city's Chief Administration Office and the Winnipeg Parking Authority decided to close the parkade as a precaution, according to a press statement released Friday evening.

It was not immediately clear if the structure is a danger, but the city said the parkade will be monitored to ensure the parkade's structural integrity.

Monthly drivers were to be notified over the weekend and their spots will be transferred to the Millennium Library Parkade at 251 Donald St.

Transit buses will shuttle monthly drivers back and forth from city hall each day.

The Winnipeg Police Service will still use the underground levels of the parkade.

James Avenue will be closed between Princess and King streets, according to the release.

Aqua Books seeks funds to stay afloat

Fundraiser. Store/
venue looks for support to open at new location

SHANE GIBSON
shane.gibson@metronews.ca

After more plot twists than a good novel, the last chapter of Aqua Books' longer-than-expected move to its new location is being written — but owner Kelly Hughes needs Winnipeg's help to finance the final edit.

With mounting costs to meet city code — and the loss of revenue from not being able to host high-profile summer events — Aqua Books is looking to raise $10,000 over the next month to open the nearly-finished store at 123 Princess St.

"We're just kind of trying to finish up and get open," said Hughes, who is sporting a beard as a symbol of the waiting period. "I'm not going to shave (my beard) until we get our papers from the city to open."

The new Aqua Books will feature a stage for music and theatre, a bar, a small food service area, workshop space and a small selection of books.

Hughes announced he'd be closing the store's old shop on Garry Street last August, and unveiled the new location in the basement of a 112-year-old building in the Exchange District in February.

At the time, Hughes had hoped to be open in time to host the Jazz Festival performances and Fringe Festival shows this summer, but had to abandon both when the city shut down the venue due to permit issues. "We ended up with some unexpected paperwork challenges that we didn't get sorted out by the time it was time to go," explained Hughes. "It's been a huge bummer."

Aqua Books is taking donations online, and are offering a number of unique incentives for donors including the opportunity to receive a phone call and rendition of Happy Birthday (sung in the style of Marilyn Monroe) from Hughes himself on their birthday.

"We're having some fun with this," he said.

Aqua Books owner Kelly Hughes is optimistic his new store, music venue, and restaurant will be opening in the Exchange District soon. To donate to Aqua Books, go to indiegogo.com/AquaBooks. SHANE GIBSON/METRO

Customer, clerk
keep thief at bay

A young Winnipeg man is behind bars after police say he robbed a convenience store.

Winnipeg police said a man walked into the store on Selkirk Avenue Friday night around 9 p.m. trying to keep his face covered by his shirt. He demanded money from the 55-year-old clerk. The situation escalated when the man tried to take the entire cash register and began beating up the clerk.

A customer in the store threw himself into the fight and together the clerk and the customer, a 44-year-old man, held the would-be robber down until police came.

Stuart Norman Spence, 21, faces charges of robbery with violence, wearing a disguise and breach of probation. METRO

Winnipeg senator's wife charged in flight disturbance

Domestic argument. Zimmer's 23-year-old bride of one year to make second court appearance Monday after verbal fracas on airplane

A woman charged with causing a disturbance on a flight to Saskatoon was allegedly arguing with her husband, who is a Canadian senator from Winnipeg.

Maygan Sensenberger, 23, was in court in Saskatoon on Friday, after allegedly threatening passengers, swearing, and arguing with her husband, Rod Zimmer, 69.

Court records show the disturbance happened on Air Canada Flight 8597, which originated in Halifax, stopped in Ottawa and then went on to Saskatoon.

"It's our understanding that throughout the flight, there was a verbal argument taking place of a domestic nature," said Alyson Edwards, spokesperson with the Saskatoon Police Service.

According to witnesses, Sensenberger created a large disturbance and it only got worse as the plane neared Saskatoon, Edwards said.

"The suspect in this case had stated to several people that she believed her husband was in medical distress," said Edwards, adding that alcohol may have been a factor.

Officers met the woman when the aircraft landed.

Sensenberger is charged with endangering the safety of the aircraft and causing a disturbance. Court records show police believe she uttered threats against her husband and threatened to take down the plane.

Zimmer, who is a Liberal and represents Manitoba in the Senate, was appointed to the Canadian upper chamber in 2005 by then-prime minister Paul Martin.

No one was injured in the incident and police say the safety of the aircraft was not compromised.

Sensenberger was visibly shaken and tearful in the prisoner's box during her court appearance Friday.

She will be remanded in custody until her second appearance on Monday.

A Facebook page that was started in 2010 called, "Rod Zimmer & Maygan Sensenberger's Wedding Page," says they were married on Aug. 27, 2011.

Pictures apparently taken in the House of Commons show the happy couple looking deeply into each others' eyes while holding one another. Sensenberger shows off her ring in at least one of the photos.

Zimmer was born in Kuroki, Sask., east of Saskatoon, and currently lives in Winnipeg.

His parliamentary biography lists several positions he held before being appointed a senator, including vice-president for the festivals for the Pan American Games Society Inc., a member of the board of directors for the Winnipeg Blue Bombers Football Club and a member of the board of the Canadian Paralympic Foundation.

Lighthouse Mission sees major inside-the-box donation

Mission volunteers unload boxes Friday morning. LAUREN PARSONS/METRO

Volunteers unpacked about 150 boxes of new clothing donated to Lighthouse Mission by Project Echo Friday morning.

"We outfit around ten to 20 people daily with our current clothing program — we hope to be able to double that," said Reverend Sean Goulet, executive director of Lighthouse Mission.

The clothing donated on Friday morning consisted of warm clothing, jackets, and boots. Goulet said the mission wants to provide new clothing to their guests, and give them dignity through Winnipeg's coldest months.

"Project Echo asked what the need was, and they delivered," said Rev. Goulet.

The mission sees more than 200 people daily, and offers addiction treatment, transitional housing, non-perishable food items, food hampers, warm clothing, mentoring, and daily meals. The mission has also joined with Project Echo to provide job skills training — some of the guests helped in the process of shipping and receiving the donation.

Act of God. Critics point out irony in Republican logic

The hotly anticipated Republican National Convention in Tampa, Fla., kicks off this week, though it's now at the mercy of a would-be hurricane bearing down to join forces with the tempest already inflicted upon Mitt Romney and the Republican party by an anti-abortion Missouri congressman.

The irony of a potential hurricane wreaking havoc on the convention hasn't been lost on many pundits, especially since several high-profile conservatives, including Republican congresswoman Michele Bachmann, have blamed liberal policies over the years for similar "acts of God."

"By their own logic, Republicans and their conservative allies should be concerned that Isaac is a form of divine retribution," Washington Post columnist Dana Milbank wrote last week.

Indeed, the recent remarks from U.S. Senate candidate Todd Akin about women's bodies shutting down and preventing pregnancy in cases of "legitimate rape" have already exposed dangerous fault lines in the party's fragile coalition of disparate factions.

"This is a classic bullhorn lock between the social conservatives of the party and the big business, economy-focused Republicans, the ones who are really worried about taxes and deregulation and other economic matters," says Doug Brinkley, a historical author and history professor at Rice University in Houston. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tropical storm expected to hit on 7th anniversary of Katrina

On the move. Keys residents nonchalant about Isaac's soaking, but Gulf Coast braced for potential hurricane Tropical storm Isaac barely stirred Florida Keys residents from their fabled nonchalance Sunday, while the Gulf Coast braced for the possibility that the sprawling storm will strengthen into a dangerous hurricane by the time it makes landfall there.

Isaac was expected to cross the Keys by late afternoon, then turn northwest and strike as a Category 2 hurricane somewhere between the New Orleans area to the Florida Panhandle on Wednesday, the seventh anniversary of hurricane Katrina.

The storm was predicted to pass west of Tampa, the site of the Republican National Convention, but it had already disrupted the schedule there because of the likelihood of heavy rain and strong winds.

Even before reaching hurricane strength, Isaac caused considerable inconvenience, with hundreds of flights cancelled at airports in Miami and Fort Lauderdale. There were scattered power outages from Key West to Fort Lauderdale affecting more than 6,000 customers, and flooding occurred in low-lying areas.

Wind gusts of about 97 km/h were reported as far north as Pompano Beach, north of Fort Lauderdale. But while officials urged residents in southeast Florida to stay home, that recommendation was ignored by surfers and joggers on Miami Beach and shoppers at area malls.

U.S. woman becomes pro-Palestinian symbol

Civil lawsuit. Couple looking for justice after their daughter was crushed by an Israeli tank back in 2003

Almost a decade after their daughter was crushed to death by an Israeli army bulldozer as she tried to block its path in a Gaza Strip conflict zone, Rachel Corrie's parents are preparing for a judge's ruling in their high-profile civil lawsuit against the military.

They hope Tuesday's court decision will conclude a case that's turned their daughter into a rallying cry for pro-Palestinian activists, taken years of their life and drained their savings.

"We are here with a great deal of anticipation for Tuesday," said Corrie's mother, Cindy, 64, a homemaker and musician from Olympia, Washington. "We are hoping for some accountability here for what happened to Rachel."

Corrie, a pro-Palestinian activist, was 23 when she was killed in March 2003 while she and other activists sought to block an Israeli military bulldozer they believed was about to demolish Palestinian homes. The driver has said he didn't see Corrie, and the death was accidental.

The Israeli army had been undertaking systematic house demolitions in the densely populated border area, trying to halt shooting and mortar attacks against soldiers and Jewish settlers who used the route.

While several foreign activists were killed or wounded in confrontations with the Israeli military during the last decade, Corrie's case has taken on special meaning for Palestinian activists; she became a symbol of what they say is Israel's harsh repression of non-violent protest to occupation.

Pussy Riot. Two members flee Russia to escape same fate as bandmates

Two members of the punk band Pussy Riot have fled Russia to avoid prosecution for a protest against Vladimir Putin that sent three of their bandmates to prison, the group said Sunday.

Five members of the feminist group took part in a provocative performance inside Moscow's main cathedral in February to protest the Russian leader's rule and his cozy relationship with the Orthodox Church. The women wore their trademark garishly coloured balaclavas, which made it difficult for police to identify them, and only three were arrested.

Murdoch sending message by running nude Harry photos?

'Mooning the establishment' Reports suggest scandal-plagued mogul may be pushing back on press freedom by challenging royals

By letting his top-selling U.K. tabloid run photos of a naked Prince Harry cavorting in a Las Vegas hotel room, some say media mogul Rupert Murdoch

Quoted

"He may be on the public payroll one way or another, but the public loves him."

News International head Rupert Murdoch on royal rogue Prince Harry was warning Britain's establishment that he could still shake things up.

British officialdom has largely turned its back on Murdoch because of the phone-hacking scandal that has badly tainted his media empire over the past year. So even though Murdoch's The Sun newspaper framed its decision to publish the nude pictures as a defence of press freedom, some observers saw the move as a feisty message from the tycoon.

"Not only was The Sun showing Harry's bottom, Murdoch was mooning the Establishment," said journalist Jane Merrick, whose article in The Independent on Sunday alleged that Murdoch personally ordered the paper to run the photos in a phone call with Tom Mockridge, the chief of his British newspaper unit, News International.

Murdoch, once courted by lawmakers across the British political spectrum, has seen his clout wither after his company was exposed as having hacked phones to score scoops.

The scandal has prompted a media-ethics inquiry that could propose sweeping changes to how Britain's press is policed.

If The Sun was cowed, it didn't show it Friday, when it published the pictures of Harry along with a lengthy public-interest justification claiming that "the photos have potential implications for the Prince's image representing Britain around the world."

In a Twitter message to a reader who congratulated him on The Sun's decision, Murdoch said he "needed to demonstrate (that there is) no such thing as free press in U.K."

$1B. Apple verdict over Samsung may hurt competitors: Analysts

It was the $1-billion question: What does Apple's victory in an epic patent dispute over Samsung mean for the U.S. smartphone industry?

Many analysts said the decision could spell danger for competitors who, like Samsung, use Google's Android operating system to power their cellphones.

A loss to the Android-based market would represent a big hit for Google, as well.

"I am sure this is going to put a damper on Android's growth," New York-based Isi Group analyst Brian Marshall said, "It hurts the franchise."

The Silicon Valley jury found that some of Samsung's products illegally copied features and designs exclusive to Apple's iPhone and iPad.

Samsung has vowed to appeal the verdict all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, arguing that Apple's patents were wrongly granted.

A Sept. 20 hearing is scheduled.

Most Bisphenol A destroyed or ends up in landfill: Study

Most of the Bisphenol A contained in everyday products is either destroyed or winds up in landfills, says a new study for Environment Canada. The finding helps to allay concerns that BPA persists in the environment — but critics say the study should not stall elimination efforts. Since April, key industries have been required to develop plans to reduce the amount of BPA they release into the environment.

There was a moment last week when I wondered if Blue Bomber executives Garth Buchko and Jim Bell might actually be evil geniuses.

Could it be that, in order to draw attention away from the misery on the field, they were intentionally creating even more misery off of it?

Of course that conspiracy theory was quickly debunked on Saturday, when the Bombers fired head coach Paul LaPolice, making him the scapegoat for the team's sad 2-6 record, and even sadder relationship with fans.

On the first point, LaPolice certainly does bear a lot of responsibility. In two-and-a-half seasons as coach, his overall record was only 16-28. And even though the team came close to beating the league-leading BC Lions the other night, the offence still struggled and players took way too many dumb penalties.

In LaPolice's defence though, he wasn't in charge of assembling the players who make up the squad. That job belongs to GM Joe Mack, who says he's perfectly fine with his work this year. That assessment might cause many football observers to question whether Mack has ever actually seen the Bombers in action.

LaPolice also wasn't responsible for new stadium construction, concessions, security, public relations, ticketing or scheduling. And even more than the poor on-field results, those are the things that have driven the Bomber faithful nuts this season.

After all, it's one thing to watch your football team lose a game. It's something altogether worse when security treats you like a terrorist trying to sneak in an exploding cowbell on your way into the game.

As a result, many fans have completely lost confidence in the team's management. And that's a problem that's not going to be fixed by firing the coach or handing out a few free cups of water.

No, a more meaningful solution would be to give the fans what they really want, which is a voice in how the team is run. How to do that? By selling shares to the public and truly becoming a "community owned" enterprise.

It's not a new idea. A share sale has been floated in the past as a way to generate money — the Saskatchewan Roughriders and Green Bay Packers have raised millions through public share offerings — and a way to improve the team's governance.

While those points are still valid, moving to a shareholder model now would also be a shrewd bit of public relations. For team representatives like Buchko, Bell, Mack and the board of directors to put their own positions into the hands of the public would go a long way toward rebuilding trust.

And the timing seems right for this change. With the team finally moving into its new stadium next year (right?), it's going to need a solid fan base and new life around the boardroom table if it's going to succeed.

Opening up the ownership and management structure to the public would get this new era in Bomber history off to a good start and ensure that "Always Your Team" is more than just an empty marketing slogan.

Cookbook stakes out vampire eats

True Blood fans can soon concoct their own blood-red beet bisque, crimson sweet tea and other Cajun delicacies inspired by the hit HBO vampire drama and compiled in a new cookbook.

True Blood is filmed partly in Louisiana and is set in the fictional Louisiana town of Bon Temps. The state's cuisine is often referenced in the series, where vampires and mortals mingle over bowls of okra gumbo, jambalaya, and red beans and rice.

The cookbook, True Blood: Eats, Drinks, and Bites from Bon Temps, was compiled by Cajun chef Marcelle Bienvenu and is being released in bookstores on Wednesday, shortly after Sunday's broadcast of the show's fifth-season finale.

"I'm going to be honest with you, I had never seen the show before they asked me to do this cookbook," said Bienvenu, a chef from the Cajun town of St. Martinville, La., who lived in New Orleans for several years and now teaches culinary arts at Nicholls State University in Thibodaux, La.

"I sat down and watched it with my notebook, and I was amazed how much food was mentioned in the series," she said. "It was fun making the recipes come to life. I think people are still mystified by south Louisiana food. There's still such a mystique about the food and culture here." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This was the first canal boat to be pulled through London, England, by a horse in 60 years. The Ilkeston barge was on its way to the London Canal Museum to mark its 100th birthday, after being restored to mint condition in the North of England. The odd (celebrity) couple

The engagement of Avril Lavigne and Chad Kroeger has shocked Sk8er Bois and wannabe rockstars alike. This is how they remind us of some other strange star couplings.

MICHELLE CASTILLO
Metro World News

Congratulations are in order for Canada's most famous couple that no one knew existed, Avril Lavigne and Chad Kroeger. Lavigne annoyed millions (all the way to the platinum-tinged bank) with her "punk" records and pop singles. Kroeger has drawn much criticism for his lead singer role in Nickelback — so much so that even he's joined in and jokingly lashed back at the hatred through tongue-in-cheek videos on Funny or Die and quips on Twitter.

The two surprised fans and enemies alike by getting engaged after six months of discretely dating while they were co-writing a song for Lavigne's fifth studio album.

But they're not the most shocking couple out there. Here's a couple more pairings that had us stunned.

Ben Affleck and Jennifer Lopez

He was raised in Boston. She grew up the Bronx. Somehow, these two managed to get together for what we are quite sure was a meaningful, not-long-lasting relationship. And, um, Gigli.

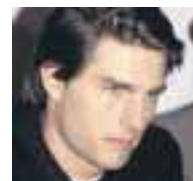

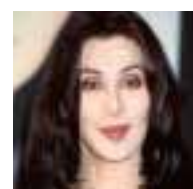

Woody Allen and Soon-Yi Previn

Though legally he wasn't her stepfather, Allen's relationship with Previn's adoptive mother, Mia Farrow, made the whole situation icky. It must be true love though: They've been together since 1992 and have two adopted daughters.

Lisa Marie Presley and Nicolas Cage

Gossip mills say that one of the main reasons Cage was attracted to the Presley daughter was because of his obsession with the King, which we're assuming would make for really awkward first date conversation.

Tom Cruise and Cher

Believe it or not, these two were together for a few months in the 1980s. Then again, it was the 1980s. A lot of things that shock us today weren't so surprising back then.

Katy Perry and John Mayer expire

THE WORD
Dorothy Robinson

Katy Perry has joined the surprisingly long list of hot, talented women to be dumped by John Mayer.

After two months, Mayer — who has also dated Jennifer Aniston, Jessica Simpson and Taylor Swift — called things off with the singer late last week, according to RadarOnline.

Unlike the rest of us, Perry apparently thought Mayer had grown up since his days of bragging about his A-list sex life in Playboy.

"Katy fell hook, line and sinker for John, so when he broke it off she was ultimately surprised and incredibly embarrassed," a source tells the site.

"She's ashamed that she got played. It was the classic ladies man move — he added another notch on his bedpost. He charmed Katy, got what he wanted and moved on."

Katy, don't be embarrassed that you got played by a sleazy guy — be embarrassed that you got played by the guy who wrote Your Body is a Wonderland.

Prince Harry.

Prince Harry gets public dressing down

Prince Harry is reportedly planning to make a public mea culpa for the naked photo scandal from his recent trip to Las Vegas, according to Radar Online.

"Harry regrets the embarrassment he has caused the royal family around the world and plans on apologizing for his antics," a source says. "He got a stern-telling off from his father, Prince Charles, as well as the Queen, who reminded him of his responsibilities as a member of the royal family. Even on vacation, the Prince has to realize that he is an ambassador for the country and should behave appropriately."

Madonna.

Madonna clears the air on Elton

Madonna apparently wants to smooth things over with Elton John, who denounced the singer as a "fairground stripper" and said her career was "over" in a recent interview. Addressing a crowd at her recent concert in Nice, France, Madonna cleared the air.

"I forgive him. I know he's a big fan of mine. And you know? I forgive him. Got to start somewhere."

Of course, she then went into a rendition of Masterpiece, the track that won her a Golden Globe earlier this year over John's Hello.

Parents' back to school 101: Letting them go

Parenting. Don't let your nerves take over as your little ones board that school bus

MEREDITH ENGEL

Metro World News in New York City

Pop quiz: Who's more nervous about starting school this year, you or your child? If it's you, "it's a very normal response to have," says Matthew Stevenson, a child and family therapist in Philadelphia. We asked him how parents can send their little ones off to school without letting their nerves take over.

Why does this anxiety happen?

It usually happens the first couple of times that a parent leaves their child alone, even for a couple hours. It's a natural thing to be worried about the person that you brought into the world, that you're responsible for, if you're not there when you are there typically. Particularly the stay-at-home parents, for them to be with this person 24/7 for five years and then to have them go off alone, that can cause a lot of stress. And it's a very normal thing to experience that stress. They're worried about their kid because they know they can keep their child safe. They've been doing it for five years, and now they're giving that responsibility to somebody else. It's hard to let go of that control.

Acknowledging that you're nervous about your child heading off to school is the first step to feeling better. ISTOCK

Where it can potentially become a problem is if that stress is being picked up by the child.

How can parents feel better?

Acknowledge it. The parent needs to realize that this is something they're concerned about — that's step one. Once they're able to acknowledge that, understand that it's a pretty normal anxiety to have. Step two is that it's important for parents to realize that they need to let their child go. That's part of the growth of their child, to have that independence and be able to function and do well without having the parent present all the time. Part of being a good parent is having your child thrive when you're not around. Then once you are able to let your child go to school, it's important to keep yourself occupied during those times. Have activities, do errands that are a lot easier to do without a child. Join classes, go to the gym — anything that would distract you so before you know it, it's time to pick up your little one.

When is this a problem that needs some extra help?

If the parent is going to school to watch their kid at recess, that would be not healthy. I think calling the school multiple times during the day to make sure that their child is OK, that would not be healthy. Showing that you're so upset, and your child picks up on that and then doesn't want to go to school, that's where it becomes a big issue. If you're able to hide your anxiety from your child, and they still enjoy going to school, it's not as much of a problem. But if it's affecting the entire family, then at that point it's probably good to seek help from a therapist.

Turn tonight's dinner into tomorrow's unique lunch

The best dinners are those that not only are delicious in their own right, but that also leave leftovers that can be reworked into lunch the next day.

This recipe for grilled hoisin pork tenderloin is perfect. The dinner itself is simple: Just toss the marinated tenderloin on the grill along with a few vegetables and it's good to go.

The next day, turn the leftover pork into barbecue pulled pork by pulling it apart and mixing it with barbecue sauce. It can be eaten on a bun or in a wrap. It also can be served

Ingredients

- 9.4-oz jar hoisin sauce
- 1 cup red wine
- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tsp hot sauce
- 2-lbs pork tenderloins
- 5 large yellow onions
- 2 tbsp olive oil
- Kosher salt and ground black pepper
- 1 tbsp whole cumin seeds warm or cold.

1. In large zip-close plastic bag, combine hoisin, wine, soy sauce, garlic and hot sauce. Seal bag and gently shake to mix well. Add pork tenderloin — then close bag and gently turn to ensure the meat is well coated. Refrigerate for at least two hours and up to 24 hours.

2. Trim ends from onions, then peel off outer layer of skin.

Place onions in a second large zip-close plastic bag; add olive oil, a bit of salt and pepper, and cumin seeds. Seal bag, gently shake to coat evenly. Refrigerate until ready to grill meat.

3. When ready to cook, heat one side of the grill to medium-high, the other side to low.

4. Using oil-soaked paper towel held with tongs, oil the grill grates. Add whole onions to cooler side of grill. Grill, covered, for 5 minutes. Turn onions, then add pork to cooler side of grill. Grill pork for 6 minutes per side. Remove onions when very tender and meat when it is seared on outside and reaches 145 F at centre.

5. Transfer pork and onions to a platter and let the meat rest for 5 minutes. Thinly slice the pork and serve with an onion.

The Winnipeg Blue Bombers fired head coach Paul LaPolice on Saturday. RYAN REMIOWZ/THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Bombers turn to Burke to turn season around

CFL. Defensive co-ordinator has 'mixed emotions' on firing of head coach LaPolice

Paul LaPolice has paid the price for the Winnipeg Blue Bombers' losing season.

The Bombers fired their head coach on Saturday and replaced him with defensive co-ordinator Tim Burke, who'll have the rest of the season to improve the 2-6 squad before his performance is evaluated.

Joe Mack, the team's vice-president and general manager, said the decision to fire LaPolice was "building over the season" and wasn't a knee-jerk reaction to Winnipeg's 20-17 loss Friday to the 6-2 CFL-leading B.C. Lions.

"Even though we did play a strong game (Friday), the overall feeling was is that we were not necessarily going in the right direction and that this was the appropriate time to make a change," Mack said at a press conference Saturday afternoon.

He cited a lack of improvement in the offence, undisciplined play and a losing record since a year ago as factors in his decision.

Burke has been in the CFL since 2005 with Calgary, Montreal and Winnipeg, which he joined last season.

Highly regarded for putting together top defences, he was a finalist this year to become Hamilton's head coach, but the job went to George Cortez.

"I have mixed emotions on this day," Burke, 58, said. "A lot of you know that I've really wanted to become a head coach and I really relish this opportunity to prove that I can be a head coach."

"I'm very sad also because Paul is my friend and he was very gracious after Joe told him."

LaPolice, 42, was in his third season in Winnipeg and leaves the team with a 16-28 record. He wasn't immediately available for comment Saturday but later took to Twitter to address his firing.

"Thks to everyone for the show of support. Although I 110% disagree with the decision today, I have loved every minute of being HC of Bombers," he tweeted.

LaPolice also dismissed suggestions the Bombers players had lost faith in him as their head coach.

"Last nights effort did not reflect a team that didn't believe in the coach and players that have reached out to me disagree with that view," he tweeted. "Thanks to everyone and although not perfect I am proud

Out of time

After LaPolice took over for the fired Mike Kelly following the 2009 season, the Bombers struggled to a league-low 4-14 record.

- But Winnipeg rebounded in a big way in 2011, winning the East Division with a 10-8 mark before losing 34-23 to B.C. in the Grey Cup.

of our Eastern championship, grey cup appearance and think the future can be bright."

LaPolice was given a two-year contract extension last off-season that took him through the 2014 season. He reportedly was earning about $230,000 a year, a deal the team has to honour. Mack also got an extension.

Seahawks coaches and management were raving about how good Terrell Owens looked when he signed with Seattle earlier this month. That enthusiasm proved short-lived though as the controversial 38-year-old receiver was released by the club on Sunday.

Kiwi teen Ko wins Canadian Open at 15

Lydia Ko is not going to the bank to cash a champion's cheque, but she still gets what many pro golfers do not yet have.

Recognition in the World Golf Hall of Fame.

The 15-year-old amateur made her mark in history Sunday as she became the youngest ever winner of an LPGA event by capturing the Canadian Women's Open title with a 5-under 67.

Since Ko is still an amateur, she could not collect the top prize of $300,000. But her glove will be displayed in the World

"I didn't even know what I (was) doing when I (was) 15. So it's pretty amazing to see her play this good (on) the best stage."

"To have something that's mine to be up there, it's amazing, and it doesn't come down or anything," she said. "So it will always remain there, and it'll be a good memory. It's been an awesome week."

The New Zealander finished with a 13-under 275 total to beat Inbee Park of South Korea by three strokes. But the cash went to Park, who made the score closer by chipping in for birdie from an estimated 40 yards on the final hole.

"The pressure she was handling is really amazing," said Park. "I'm really happy for her. It's great for her career — and I think I was just lucky to get the winner's cheque today."

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20
Partnerships and affairs of the heart may be a bit stormy as the week begins. Try not to overreact because it is only a passing phase and will pass a lot quicker if you stay calm, whatever the provocation.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21
Social activities are unlikely to appeal to you today, but matters related to your health and fitness will. Head for the gym or the pool and not only will you feel better physically but mentally and emotionally too.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21
You seem much more passionate than usual, and that's good, but watch out you don't go over the top in some way. Not everyone shares your interests and some people won't take kindly to you trying to "convert" them.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23
Your instincts about people are rarely off target but with mind planet Mercury under pressure at the moment you could get the wrong end of the stick. Don't jump to conclusions.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23
You may be feeling ultra dynamic but not everyone out there shares your get up and go attitude to life. If there is something you want doing over the next 24 hours you will most likely have to do it yourself.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Stop worrying about money and relationship issues and just go out and have fun. Sometimes you can allow trivial things to get on top of you and that's not good, especially right at the start of the week.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
The more you try to persuade friends and colleagues to get involved in your latest scheme the more they back away. Why is that? It could be because they are still hurting from how your last scheme worked out.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
If you get the chance to travel and meet new people over the next few days – and you will – you must seize it with both hands. Don't let those at home hold you back – their reasons are largely selfish.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Is there a grand design? Does your existence have meaning? Yes and yes again are the answers to those questions and even if you did not believe it before you will believe it today. There is no such thing as "coincidence".

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Yes, of course, you should respect people in positions of power but that does not mean you have to do everything they say. Sometimes a bit of rebellion is a healthy thing – it keeps everyone on their toes.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Don't be afraid to ask people you live and work with what they think about what you are doing. Some of what they say may be critical but most of the feedback will be positive. Their input is essential.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20
You seem to believe that everyone but you is in on some kind of secret. It may be true but more likely you are being a bit paranoid. Stop worrying about what other people know – it's what you know that matters. SALLY BROMPTON
